VEGETARIANS HERE ENROUTE TO WEST

Two Young Men on Long Hike
to Prove That Vegetables
Will Take Place of Meat.

H. Ward Soule, of South Portland, Me., known as "Skip", and Albert Seifert, 14, Swanton, O., arrived in this city at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. They were hiking to San Francisco, Cal.

The boys push a cart which is a box slung on two bicycle wheels, to carry their luggage, which is briefly: One tent, one poncho, two blankets, one suit dress clothes each, six pairs of socks each, one gallon African water bag, one log book, two pairs hiking shoes each, one pair "Mud" shoes each, one reflector oven, one camp fire grate, one folding canvas wash basin, one folding canvas bucket, one earthenware bean pot, one hatchet, one knife, aluminum dishes, spoons, kettles, a coffee grinder, a first aid outfit, text books on geology and botany and their food.

On May 21, 1913, Soule and Earl Baxtresser of Middletown, Pa., started from the Buffalo City hall. When they got to Swanton, O., after "hiking" 344 miles, Baxtresser was taken sick and was forced to give up "Skip" looked for a partner and found one in Seifert, and the "hike" was renewed.

The two live entirely on "Flecherized" vegetarian diet as Ward has done for five years. They walk eight hours a day. In hot weather they walk from two o'clock a. m. to ten o'clock a. m., then set up camp for the next day. They sleep from 5:30 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.

They have two lunches per day, one at 3 a. m. and one at 9 a. m., and a real meal at 1 p. m. About 25 miles is a fair average for a day.

Their course is laid out as follows:

Buffalo, Erie, Cleveland, Sandusky, Toledo, Mishawaka, South Bend, Chicago, Davenport, Des Moines, Omaha, Denver, Pueblo, Santa Fe, Grand Canyon, Phoenix, Yuma, San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco. They expect to arrive in Los Angeles on Thanksgiving day.

They sell post cards which are photos of themselves. The objects of the trip they say, are education, travel, outdoor life and to prove that the vegetarian diet under laborious conditions is more efficient than a meat diet.

FUNERAL OF DROWNED GIRLS ON THURSDAY

Will Occupy One Grave While Four Hearses Will be Used.
Friends Start Campaign to Aid the Family.

ELKHART, Ind., July 1.—That the four daughters of John Schwin, who were drowned in the St. Joseph river three miles above the city Monday afternoon, lost their lives because of ignorance of land erosions caused by the backwater from the new dam is the belief of Nell Fisher, a young man who lives near the scene of the accident and assisted in the work of taking the bodies from the water.

Mr. Fisher declares that the girls were in the habit of wading and bathing near the place where they were drowned, and undoubtedly thought the water was shallow for some distance from the shore. However there is a sharp stepoff about six feet from the shore at this place, of which Mr. Fisher states he had no previous knowledge, though familiar with this part of the river. The water is more than six feet deep at this point, which is just below the outlet of a small creek, and may have been caused by an eddy formed by the confluence of the smaller stream with the larger.

The four sisters, Alice, Clara, Ida and Grace will be buried in one grave at the Zion cemetery in Washington church Thursday afternoon, following brief services at the residence at 1 o'clock and at Zion church at 2 o'clock. Rev. A. Dressel of the First Lutheran church will officiate. The children will lie in four white plush caskets, each of the same design, and will be borne to the cemetery in four hearses. Former playmates, boys of the neighborhood, will act as pallbearers.

Quick to realize that this sudden blow to the Schwin family, coming as it does as the last of a long chain of misfortunes, would also prove a great financial burden, friends at once began to provide for their relief. A subscription paper circulated at the plant of the Foster Machine company where Mr. Schwin is employed as a machinist, brought donations to the amount of $135. City Controller E. L. Burns also became interested in the case and prepared subscription blanks to be circulated in other factories and in the business district.

Coming here from Chicago with the Foster-Kimball company in 1904, Mr. Schwin has been burned out once, was sick and unable to work for three months, and had many other financial reverses of a similar nature. He but recently settled a costly litigation over a worthless gasoline engine which an alleged shyster tricked him into buying. For three years he has been endeavoring to buy the little farm where he lives on the monthly payment plan.

ARRIVES IN VIENNA.
According to word received by friends here, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Paegler have arrived in Vienna, Austria, where the doctor will enter a school to take a post graduate course in medicine and surgery.

He was brought to the city for medical attention.

Food Needs For Summer

Call for easily digested cereals, fruits, etc., and less of the heavy, hard-to-digest kind.

But the nourishment must be there!

Probably the most nourishing, most easily digested cereal food known is

Grape-Nuts

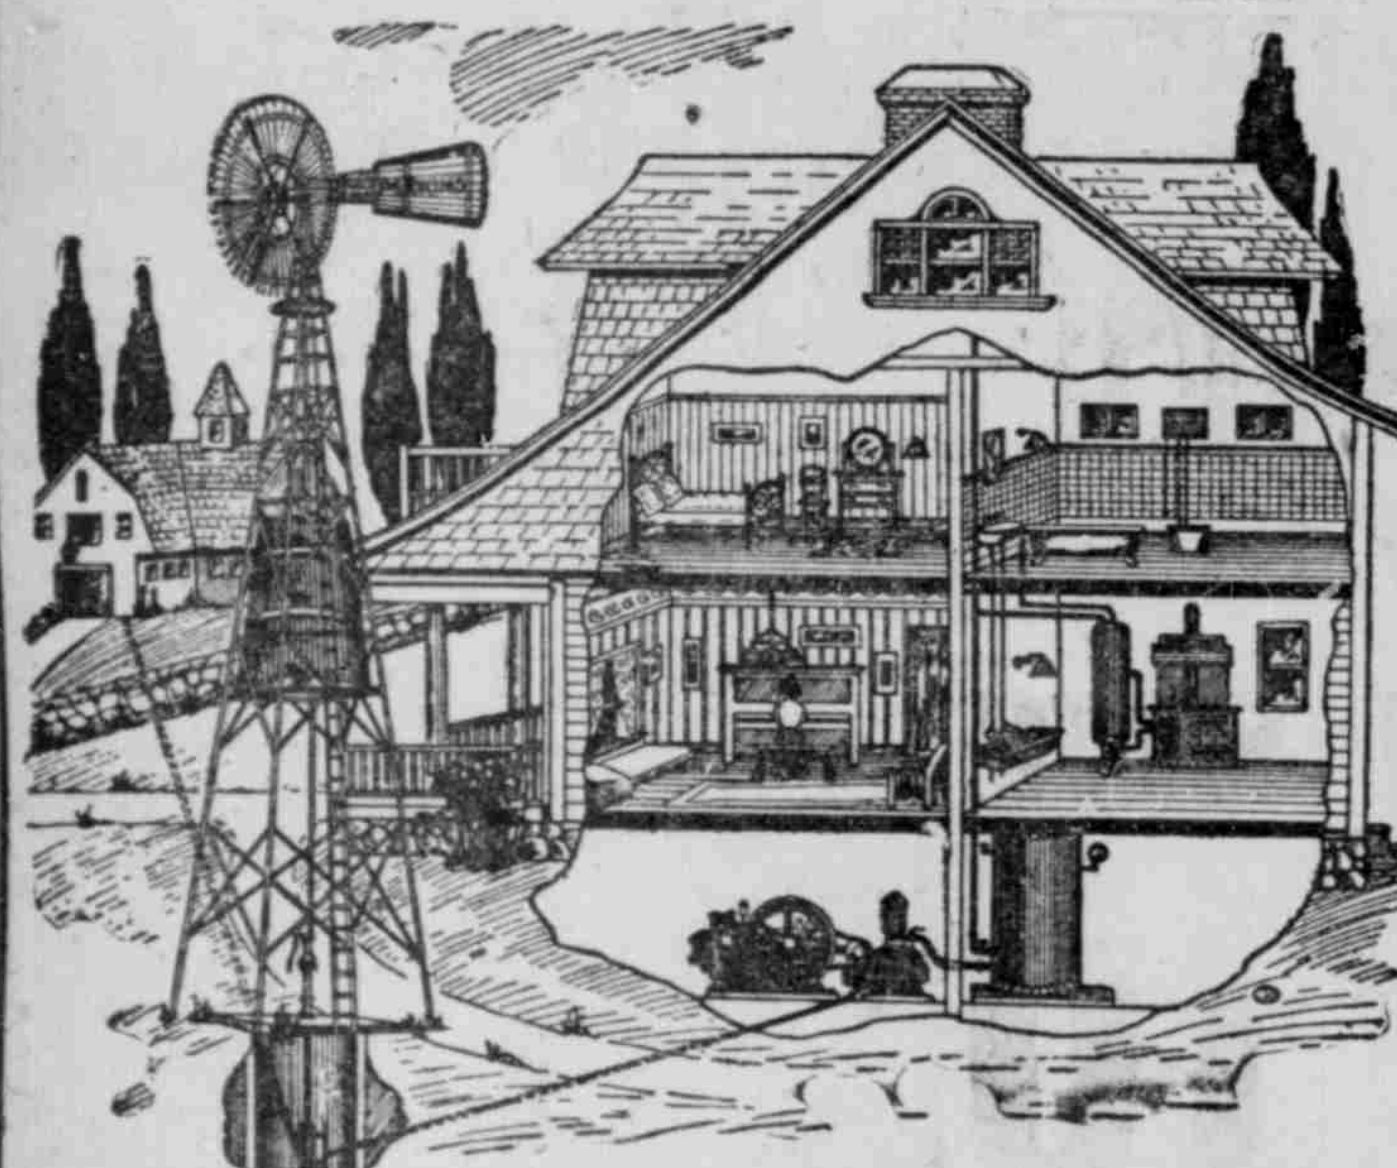

Made from prime wheat and malted barley, it is ready to eat direct from the package; digests generally in about one hour; and contains the true brain and muscle building materials placed in the field grains by Nature for man's use.

Grape-Nuts food has delicious taste; and is pure, wholesome and a "builder" in the truest sense of the word—an ideal summer dish that does not overheat the body.
